FAITH B. STURTEVANT, 1906, President of Christian Association.

THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION RECEPTION.

The Christian Association Reception was held as usual on the first Saturday night of the term in College Hall centre. This year on account of the large number of the Freshman class, each upper class girl and Sophomore had two or three Freshmen to introduce to her friends. To aid in remembering the names of new acquaintances, each Freshman carried a card on which those whom they met wrote name and class. Just when College Hall centre was becoming an unendurable babel, Miss Hazard, Miss Pauline Sage, the new general secretary of the Christian Association, Miss Eustis, the President of the Student Government Association, and Miss Sturtevant, the President of the Christian Association, issued from the Browning Room where they had received the guests, and took their places upon the stairs in view of all. Miss Hazard welcomed the class of 1909 in a few words, and Miss Eustis and Miss Sturtevant followed her with short speeches. We regret that Mrs. Durant was unable to be present and begged to be excused from taking her usual part in the reception, but Dr. Cuthbert Hall spoke and was warmly welcomed.

Lemonade was served in second floor centre and the evening passed pleasantly. It closed with the singing of the "Alma Mater" and the Wellesley cheer.

PRESIDENT HAZARD'S SUMMER WANDERINGS.

The Editor of COLLEGE NEWS is kind enough to ask for some account of my summer wanderings to give my girls, and how gladly would I share with them the wonder and splendor of the cathedrals, and and the majesty of snowy mountain heights. It is Howells alone who can venture to write of a cathedral after a twenty-four hours' visit; but some of my cathedrals this summer were old friends, and to enter their great doorways was like coming to a home of one's soul. This was especially true of York, where the first night on English soil was spent, a minster known, and loved, and suffered in, for it was there four years ago that I fell in the crypt and almost broke my leg! I solemnly remonstrated to the clerk of the works on the fact that a stone was gone in a flight of steps, just against a pillar where the shadow fell. But such a little thing as a missing stone in that wonderful, great place is evidently beneath consideration, for there is still a yawning gap in that same step, though they have introduced electric lights, and the hole is plainly visible.

The great nave of York Minster has no seats in it; the massive pillars rise from the stone floor and soar aloft, breaking into the arches which carry the roof a dizzy distance above one's head; the organ tones roll and reverberate through them; it fulfils all one's ideals of a cathedral, a place of devotion and aspiration. Lincoln, and Ely have their own special beauties, and Salisbury, and Wells in Somerset. At Salisbury, as I was wandering in the cloister—a very beautiful cloister with Gothic arches, and a great cypress tree in the middle—I saw a couple of young women drawing, and in a moment one drafts-woman came toward me. It was our own Miss Newkirk making charming notes of the architecture.

In London I went with Frances Hughes to see Princess Henry of Battenburg confer diplomas at the Royal Academy of Music. Over a hundred girls took diplomas, or awards of some sort, and very pretty they looked in white dresses with broad scarlet sashes tied over the right shoulder in a big bow under the left arm. The conferring of degrees at the Royal College of Organists by Sir Frederick Bridge, the organist of Westminster Abbey, was also most interesting. Professor Macdougall was called on for a speech there, as one of the earliest holders of their degree, and I was referred to as a "Lady Principal from North America" which seemed to be a little indefinite description of Wellesley College.

England is always homelike, always interesting and delightful; but if one wants complete change then the continent is the place, and there is nothing so good as the mountains. So August found me having gone up the Rhine and spent a few days at Lucerne, in the very heart of the great white peaks, at the foot of the Matterhorn on the Riffelalp above Zermatt. Such light as there was on that snow-covered horn, with its wreath of silver cloud forever blowing about it! And then Chamonix, and Geneva, past the foot of the great St. Bernard pass and down to the lovely smiling lake, from which like a celestial vision the dome of Mont Blanc appeared at sunset, truly clothed in "orient pearl" with "bulwarks diamond square." St. Bernard must have taken his imagery for the heavenly Jerusalem from some such vision as I saw with mortal eyes.

From these heavenly heights to Paris was a great descent, and then came some visits in England and Scotland, to Chip-ping Campden, where my host's house had 1490 cut over its doorway, and to Ballantrae in Ayrshire, where Ailsa Craig stands out at sea, keeping guard over the Scottish coast. Then one or two more cathedrals; more than twenty-four hours at Durham, the shrine of St. Cuthbert, where the long black line of marble is laid far down the nave, beyond which no woman was allowed to approach the relics "Entered as second class matter, November 12, 1903, at the post office at Wellesley, Mass., under the Act of Congress, March 3, 1879.

To this new year of college life, with its work and its play, its disappointments and its successes, the News bids you heartily welcome.

As we begin a new volume of this, our weekly news-sheet, the editors, pledging their best work to it, ask also for your sympathetic and enthusiastic support, in making it better and more "newsy" than it has ever been before. The News should be a record of all the interesting and delightful things that happen in our college world—the "worth-while" things that we want to remember accurately, and in order to make it so the editors need a staff of ex-officio reporters as large as the whole student body.

Aside from the reports of lectures, concerts and plays, which are always welcome, contributions are needed for the regular departments of the paper, as, for instance, the column of College Notes. These notes are collected by the different editors, often with infinite labor and pains, because those who know the interesting items think that their duty is done when they have imparted what they know to a select circle. If you have a bit of news in which you think others might find interest and pleasure, be generous with it! That is what the College Notes are for.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

The Free Press column is one sadly misunderstood and often abused, for it seems that it is generally understood to be a department exclusively reserved for complaints! Last June the editor begged a Free Press article from a well-known senior, and, to her horror received this answer, "O, I hate to find fault just as I am going away!" The Free Press is not exclusively a fault-finding organ. It is, as its name implies, a department, open to all, in which we like to have expressed the general thought of the College. If there is a wrong to be righted which we can right, then let the Free Press column set it forth. But, let us, too, use it for the discussion of College politics, of misunderstood rules, which we reserve for corridor chatter, and for a word of appreciation or commendation when one is needed. We all have opinions which may be helpful. Let's express them!

The Parliament of Fools, three years ago so fondly introduced as a record of the many delightful absurdities that we laugh over every day—the humorous side of our life here, has become a pathetic shadow of its former self. In an old News, the editor counted five clever contributions to one such column; now one contribution weekly is hailed with delight—and sometimes, alas! even that is not forthcoming. Yet we cannot think that the college sense of humor has grown less, for we cannot walk down a corridor, or across centre without meeting a group merry over some ridiculous happening.

Do not let the News degenerate into a purely editorial sheet. Let us work together to make the new volume the best in the history of Wellesley publications.

COLLEGE NOTES.

The following is a list of the former students of the College who have returned for work this year: Emma A. Buchler, Gertrude N. Cook, Daphne Crane, Helen Maher Downey, Helen Hazel Ela, Antoinette Gurney, Alice H. Hadden, Annie E. Hall, Mary J. Hazlett, Bertha L. Holder, Margaret Ladd, Helen B. Lorenz, Betty T. More, Clara D. Murphy, Mary R. Page, Gertrude E. Phipps, Henrietta Silliman, N. May Stilts, Ina Gertrude Thompson, Edith A. Ward.

The flower Sunday services, with sermon by President Charles Cuthbert Hall of the Union Theological Seminary, were held in the Houghton Memorial Chapel, Sunday morning, Oct. 1. At the vesper service in the evening, President Hall made an address at the invitation of the Missionary Committee of the Christian Association.

On Tuesday, October 3, a luncheon room in Number 30, College Hall, was opened for the convenience of Students living off the Campus. Hot soup, hot chocolate, milk and wafers at five cents a portion are to be had there during the week from 11.45 to 1.15, P. M.

The students have returned to Wellesley this fall, to find College Hall very much altered. The most noticeable changes are a new elevator which is going up in the east end of the building corresponding to the other in the west end, and a new and attractive Student's Parlor. This room occupies the space formerly used for the reading room and a student's room adjoining. It is large and cheerful and much appreciated. A large reading room has been arranged on the west corridor in College Hall. The cashier's office takes the place of the old student's parlor, and numerous other offices have moved into roomier quarters much to the comfort of their occupants.

Those of us who have been in Wellesley some time, as well as the incoming class for whom the concert of Monday evening, October 2, was given, owe thanks to the Music Department for another delightful entertainment. The concert was given by the Carolyn Belcher String Quartette, consisting of Carolyn Belcher, first violin, Glenn Priest, second violin, Helen Reynolds, viola, Charlotte White, violoncello, assisted by Hr. Bruce Hobbs, tenor. The program was as follows:

- Quartette in E flat Major.....Mozart
 Allegro, ma non troppo.
 Andante con moto.
 Menuetto.
 Allegro vivace.
 Songs for Tenor.
 Solo for Violoncello.
 Elegie.....Faure
 Berceuse } from les "Vendredis".....D' Osten-Sacken
 Polka... }.....Sokolaw, Glazounow, Liadow
 Songs for Tenor.
 Solo for Violin.
 Romance & Rondo.....Wieniawski
 Finale from Quartette in F major Op. 96.....Dvorak

SETTLEMENT NOTES.

A TRAVELLING CAMP FOR BOYS.

(In the interest of the Denison House.)

So much benefit has accrued during the last two camping seasons from tramping trips operated from a permanent camp as a base, that in the lack of a permanent location, it was decided to try the experiment of a travelling camp this summer. Twenty-nine boys made the trip, in three groups, divided according to age and strength. The youngest group walked from Bridgton, Maine, to Ashland, New Hampshire, seventy-eight miles in fourteen days, while the oldest group covered a distance of one hundred and eighty-eight miles in the same amount of time, walking from Ashland to Bridgton via Mt. Washington.

The outfit, which was not too heavy for one stout horse to pull, was planned for fifteen persons, including two leaders and a cook. It included a 12 x 14 tent and fly, a shelter tent, a stove weighing fifty pounds, ponchos, blankets sewed up like sleeping bags, sailor bags, pails, lanterns, shovel, ropes, axes, kettles, pots, bowls, cups, knives, forks, spoons, and, in short, all the necessary equipment for an independent gipsy community on the march. They were thus prepared to stop where they pleased, and make themselves at home; more than that, to stay as long as they liked, for the wagon was always provisioned for two weeks ahead.

The story of the trip is the story of making and breaking camps, of tramps along mountain roads, through wonderful valleys, past rugged mountains, along trails new and old, rough and steep. "Roughing it" this way brought sturdy health and keen appetite for food, chosen for wholesomeness rather than delicacy. All through there was substantial gain of health, strength, weight and ability to look out for oneself under tremendously varying conditions.

FROM THE PHILADELPHIA SETTLEMENT.

Nothing is more striking in the summer at the College Settlement of Philadelphia than the work done by its two little play-yards. One of them is 45 by 26 feet, the other 50 by 18 feet, with an extension 20 by 15 feet. Both have basket-ball goals. At one end of the smaller yard are three shower baths in a tiny shed. In the morning "Children's Hour," whose members range from infants in arms to the seven and eight-year-olds, closes with ablutions. In the afternoon, "Girls' Baths" and "Boys' Baths" are dispensed from 3 to 6 o'clock. Women, especially mothers with children, are leniently allowed to come and go very much at will "between" the others, as the children put it. Working boys and not a few men take a turn in the evening from 7 to 8 o'clock, and later in the evening perhaps a club will ask for showers before going home after its basket-ball practice. In the words of a local observer:—"Them baths are one argument against what people say, that poor folks don't like to be clean. They do if they have a chance."

of the saint, and where the Gallilee, or Lady Chapel, is built at the other end of the church in front of the towns instead of behind the altar, not to displease his bones! Durham is Norman, very fine and massive, but for the last day, as the first, I had York. Only six hours before sailing, early in the morning, I stood and knelt, all alone in the great nave of the Minster. The sun streamed through the clear-story windows, making patches of gold on pillar and pavement. In that great space, meant to hold thousands of people, I was alone. And as I left with many a lingering look, and a thankful thought, my last vision was of the Five Sisters' Window, which lights the great north transept with its lovely soft color. The Five Sisters' Window it is called, a window which should be especially dear to all women. George Herbert's lines spring to mind, as one turns and leave this ancient House of God, and one longs to have

"This glorious and transcendent place
To be a window, through Thy Grace." C. H.

I.

"Old friends to greet," seems to have been the motto of the college world during the past week, and the writer wants to say a word of heartfelt commendation on the nature of the greetings that she has seen and experienced. The cordial, hearty handshake which has left her fingers and heart both tingling with its sincerity and good fellowship, has met her on every side. And isn't it splendid, girls, that we should have adopted this way of greeting each other, and isn't it much better than the promiscuous and meaningless hugging we so often have seen? Let's cultivate our handshake, by all means, and keep the more intimate forms of greeting for the very nearest and dearest friends, and at least comparative privacy!

A JUNIOR.

II.

Girls! What is going to happen to our English? Of course, we are more or less excited in this season of getting back and "seeing everybody," but must we absolutely exhaust the dictionary in our efforts to express our jubilation? Example: "Oh, you adorable woman! I was never so glad to see anybody in all my life! You are looking heavenly! I'm crazy—absolutely insane with joy at getting back!" etc., etc. It does look absurd in print, doesn't it? It sounds just as absurd, if you only stop to think about it.

AUGUSTUS N. CLARK.

The death of Mr. Augustus N. Clark, who gave a Scholarship to Wellesley College some years ago, occurred at his home in Beverly, Mass., on August 22. Many girls have been helped through this scholarship, and Mr. Clark, a man of wide sympathies and interest in the promotion of education, retained an interest in his beneficiaries to the last.

Loan Collection of Framed Photographs.

Those who wish to decorate their rooms will find an attractive loan collection of framed photographs in the Art Building. These reproductions, representing great paintings, sculpture, and views of English scenery, are especially chosen for the purpose and are carefully framed in order that the pictures may be as varied and pleasing as possible.

The number of pictures to be taken at one time is not limited. They are loaned to any member of the College, either by the month, semester or year, thus giving an opportunity to become familiar with various pictures.

A small charge is made for the rent of each picture, according to the length of time it is borrowed.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

The trials for membership in the choir will be held in the Memorial chapel from 4.15-4.45 on October 2, 3, 4 and 5. A slight reading knowledge of music is required.

ALUMNÆ NOTES.

The ninth reunion of the class of Ninety-Six was held in the Agora House, Saturday noon, June 24th. A luncheon of cream chicken and new peas with other homemade dainties was cooked by the hostesses and served to the twenty-five members present.
The class voted to raise the sum of five hundred ($500.00) dollars for the Library Fund which sum will be paid as the decennial gift to the College next June and will be credited to the Alumnæ General Endowment Fund. By invitation of the Zeta Alpha members a reception will be held next year at the Zeta Alpha House the Saturday before Commencement, and the regular reunion dinner will be held the evening of Commencement day.

A scholarship of $1,000, to be known as the "Mac Rice Memorial Scholarship," has been founded by the class of 1902 in memory of Miss Mac E. Rice of that class. The income of this fund will be used each year in aid of some member of the Senior Class.

Mrs. Marion Pelton Guild, 1880, will spend the winter in Wellesley.

The address of Mrs. Caroline Soule Metcalf, 1880, for the school year, will be Oak street, Oberlin, Ohio.

Miss E. Grace Dewey, 1885, with friends, sailed for Europe
August 19. After a short visit at Naples, the party expect to go to Florence for the winter. They will visit Rome and Venice in the spring, and will stop in Paris and London on their way to some northern port, from which they will sail for home.

Miss Edith May, 1897, who with her mother has spent the last year in Europe, returned home in June.

Miss Eleanor Cushing, 1896, has just returned home with her mother and sister from a ten months' trip abroad.

Miss Bertha Hyatt, 1896, has resigned her position in the Library of Congress, Washington, and returned to her home in Albany.

At the recent wedding of Miss Ida Blanche Eames, 1894-1897, to Mr. Edwin Stevens, the maid of honor was Miss Harriet Otis Paul, 1895-1896, and the bridesmaids were Miss Mary B. Bal-win, 1894-1896, Miss Nelly E. Coolidge, 1894-1895, and Miss Mary G. Cannon, 1895.
